Britain's Communists have abandoned all pretense at fighting in the 1974 general election after a bad beating in the February general election. All its candidates and the two Communist members of Parliament were defeated. The party lost 10 seats and lost nearly 30 million cast. This is only a little more than twice the German has about 100,000 troops in East Germany. The Communist Party of Red party leader Kurt Fiedler, a member of the West German parliament, said Communist strength is estimated by Allied intelligence officers at 120,000 to 200,000 in June 1949. But there has been a steady flow of reinforcements from East Germany, including 100,000 Soviet military agents charged with fomenting trouble in the west.
